Academic Misconduct includes the alteration of grades; involvement in the acquisition or distribution of unadministered tests; and the unauthorized submission of student work in more than one class. Examples include:

- Submitting written work to fulfill the requirements of more than one course without the explicit permission of both instructors
- Changing, altering, falsifying or being accessory to the changing, altering or falsifying of a grade report or form, or entering any university office, building or accessing a computer for that purpose
Stealing, buying, selling, giving away or otherwise obtaining all or part of any unadministered test/examination or ANY class assignment

Substituting for another student or permitting any other person to substitute for oneself to take a test or examination. Including take home or exams/quizzes on blackboard

Altering test answers and then claiming instructor inappropriately graded the examination.
Cheating is an act of deception by which a person misrepresents his or her mastery of material on a test or other academic exercise. Examples include:

- Copying from another person’s work or allowing another person to copy your work.

- Using unauthorized materials such as a textbook or notebook during an examination or using technology to illicitly access unauthorized materials.

- Using specifically prepared materials such as notes written on clothing or other unauthorized notes, formula lists, etc., during an examination.

- Collaborating with another person during an exam by giving/receiving information without permission.
Plagiarism occurs when a person represents someone else’s words, ideas, phrases, sentences, or data as one’s own work. Examples include:

- Quoting, paraphrasing or borrowing syntax of another’s words without acknowledging the source

- Using another’s ideas, opinions or theories even if they have been completely paraphrased in one’s own words without acknowledging the source

- Incorporating facts, statistics or other illustrative material taken from a source, without acknowledging the source, unless the information is common knowledge
